Biographical Note

William H. Sewell Jr. is a historian and sociologist whose work has explored the relationship between history and social theory, with a focus on revolutionary and 19th century France. Sewell is the son of sociologist and former University of Wisconsin-Madison chancellor (1967-1968), William H. Sewell. The younger Sewell received his BA from the University of Wisconsin in 1962 before completing his PhD at the University of California, Berkeley in 1971. His dissertation examined the working class of Marseille in the era of the 1848 revolution. Sewell began his academic career as an assistant professor at the University Chicago in 1971. He was also a member of the School of Social Science at the Institute for Advanced Study (1971-72, 1975-1980). From 1980-1985, Sewell was on the faculty at the University of Arizona, first as an associate professor and later as a professor. He published his first two works in this period: Work and Revolution in France: The Language of Labor from the Old Regime to 1848 in 1980, followed by Structure and Mobility: The Men and Women of Marseille, 1820-1870 in 1985. Sewell then joined the faculty at the University of Michigan in 1985. After rejoining the faculty of the University of Chicago in 1990, Sewell retired in 2007 as the Frank P. Hixon Distinguished Service Professor of Political Science and History. He published another book on French history in 1994 entitled A Rhetoric of Bourgeois Revolution: The Abbé Sieyès and What is the Third Estate?, before publishing a work of sociological theory, Social Theory, and Social Transformation, in 2005.

The collection primarily consists of Sewell's research documents, material related to his publications and papers presented as conferences, as well as extensive correspondence with colleagues and students. It also includes notes from some of Sewell's undergraduate classes at the University of Wisconsin.
